

Students from San Alberto Magno Institute visit the Ercros factory in Sabinánigo

Ercros factory in Sabinánigo has opened a new season of students' visits, continuing its pedagogical work. This time 48 boys and girls in eleventh grade from San Alberto Magno High School in Sabinánigo have got to know Ercros facilities in their own home town.

The students, accompanied by three teachers have started the visit with a brief talk by the technical staff of the factory, who has explained how operates the first European manufacturer of chloroisocyanurates to treat pool water. Then, they have visited the electrolysis plants of sodium chlorate and potassium chloride.

The visit to Ercros facilities has been highly valued both by teachers and students, who consider very interesting to meet first-hand a company installed in their own area with a long industrial tradition.
