

The Ercros factory in Cerdanyola receives international researchers from the Recycles project

The Ercros factory in Cerdanyola received a group of 15 international researchers as part of the Recycles project, led by the Autonomous University of Barcelona and coordinated by the environmental technologies company, Aeris. The purpose of the visit was to get to know the gas treatment facilities.

The Recycles project fosters international research collaboration to improve understanding and efficiency in various aspects of biological processes, integrated effluent treatment and resource recovery.
