

Students of the Biello Aragón institute visit the Ercros factory in Sabiñánigo

A group of 4th year secondary students from the Biello Aragón of Sabiñánigo high school visited the Ercros factory in this town, in a day aimed at bringing the industrial environment closer to young people. In total, 24 students accompanied by three teachers have participated.

The visit began with a presentation, in which technical staff from the factory gave an overview of the company, its production centres, industrial activity and, in more detail, the production processes. Next, the students toured the hydrogen peroxide and chlorine-caustic soda plants, where they were able to learn in situ about the operation of the facilities and observe closely how the different stages of production are carried out.

The teachers have valued the experience very positively and have highlighted the importance of the students being able to get to know an industrial plant in operation.
